WHAT IS SAID ON BOTH SIDES. POSITION OF THE VETERAN ASSOCIATIONS-SOME

ACTION TO BE TAKEN. Colonel Richard Vose, of the 71st Regiment, in speaking to a TRIBUNK reporter yesterday in regard to the trouble between the National Guard and the veteran associations of the different regiments, said :

ments, said:

The case has been fully set forth in the statement signed by various officers of the National Guard, myself among the number, published this morning. The veteran among the number, published this morning. The veteran sasociations as they were originally conducted no one finds any fault with. But now their original intent seems to be lost sight of and they are a positive detriment to the regiment a. Veteran can mean but one thing, and it is absurd to call some of the young men in these organizations "veterans." These "veterans " have taken it upon themselves, too, to criticise the actions of the officers of the regiment—constituted themselves the advisers of the regiment—constituted themselves the advisers of the regiment—constituted themselves the divisers of the regiment—constituted themselves the new they can they call themselves colonels and majors, &c.! Suppose there was a riot—these men are not obliged to turn out; the State has no control over them. The thing has grown to such proportions that something has got to be dene.

C. H. Loutrel, a member of the Veteran Association of the 79th Regiment, said:

If I thought for an instant that the veteran association was a detriment to the regiment itself. I would take off my uniform. We always advise men whose time is out in the regiment to re-enlist and not to join the veterans. We have got a good many recruits for the regiment and have aided it in every way. The issuing of the memorial in regard to the veteran associations was not entirely a surprise to me. I have heard hints in the past few weeks that something of the kind was to be done. As to the veteran uniformed battalion, I cannot see that it interfers at all with the regiment. In case of riot or war there are many voterans who would go into the active regiment. In the Orange riote numbers of the veterans assembled at the armory and held themselves ready for service, as they have done on other occasions. It seems to be the uniformed battalion that is aimed at more than the veteran erganization that is aimed at more than the veteran erganization that is aimed at more than the veteran erganization that is aimed at more than the strictest sense of the regiment belong to our association. Our veterans are, some of them, not veterans in the strictest sense of the word. The idea was to form an association into which a man who had served his time in the regiment and did not desire to re-enlist could come and still meet the friends he had formed in the course of his service. Periags some other name than "Veteran Association" might better have been used, but the idea that we should be a deterioration or a "menace" to the regiment we have served in and labored for is absurd.

ciation of the 7th Regiment said:

These men who are agitating this thing seek to be greater than their Creator. It is the veterans of the 7th Regiment that make the regiment what it is. Would the 7th Regiment ever had its splendid armory if it had not been for the veterans? No. Do these young boys who are now carrying guns in its ranks think that we won't light as well as they if there is need? Have we not always in time of need been ready? Did not many of us in the days of the Rebellion go tarough a baptism of blood? The officers of the regiment who belong to our organization have encouraged all the things which they now condemn. If they did not like the uniformed battalion and such things, why did they not say so when it was proposed to establish them? We shall do nothing bastily, but the officers who have started this thing will find they have made a mistake.

G. S. Badger, captain of the Veteran Association.

Well, if the regiment don't want us we can go. I sho Well, if the regiment don't want us we can go. I should not wonder if this thing resulted in the formation of an association composed of the uniformed battailons of the different veteran associations. I am sure that no member of the 22d Regiment has the good of that body at heart more than do the members of the Veteran Association. I don't know what steps we shall take in the matter. Probably we will have a meeting and talk it over.

Colonel Locke W. Winchester, commanding the Veteran Battalion of the 7th Regiment, said: Colonel Locke W. Winchester, commanding the Veteran Battalion of the 7th Regiment, said:

I feel that an unwarranted attack has been made upon the uniformed battalion of the veterans of the 7th Regiment, alost of its members are the oldest men living who were formerly members of the 7th Regiment, and all the zealous and active men in the association are to be found in the uniformed battalion. They are conscientious in their belief that they have always been of service to the regiment and are still. A very large portion of the uniformed battalion have war records and while I have nothing to say as to the utility of the uniform I do say that there is something in it that binds men together and makes them active and zealous workers for the regiment. So far as the rank of officers is concerned we manne them in the form that we do in order to carry out our organization and to till our offices. Before the War officers of the association here the same titles that they do at the present day. Nearly every officer of the veteran battalion held offices during his term of service to the regiment. No effort has been made to my knowledge on the part of any member of the battalion.

OBJECTING TO HER COUSIN'S DICTATION.

The lady who went to Police Headquarters early yesterday morning to inquire about a missing telative was the wife of James M. Smith, a wealthy man of leisure who lives at No. 344 Lexington-ave. She returned to consult with Superintendent Walling later in the day, and at her request the Superintendent detailed a detective to assist in the search for her cousin, Miss Mary Augusta Ayres, who is described as nineteen years old and handsome, with dark hair and eyes, full rosy checks and regular shaped features. The young woman is an orphan who, together with a younger brother, has lived with Mrs. Smith ever since her parents died several years ago. Mrs. Smith thought that her cousin was not old enough to go much into society, and she sought to repress the evident fondness which Miss Ayres had for social entertainments. Recently there had been a misunderstanding between them because of Miss Ayres's desire to make new acquaintances, and a OBJECTING TO HER COUSIN'S DICTATION. Ayres's desire to make new acquaintances, and a professed friend of Miss Ayres, a woman, concern-ing whom Mrs. Sunth spoke with hesitation, it was said, had induced Miss Ayres to leave the house with her.

On Saturday night Miss Ayres went with this woman to a supper with some men, and Mrs. Smith told her that unless she made a change in her conduct she would have to leave the house and carn her own living. When Mrs, Smith returned from a drive in the park on Monday afternoon she learned that Miss Ayres had packed up all her clothing and jewelry and had left the house.

HANGING HIMSELF IN THE TOMBS. HANGING HIMSELF IN THE TOMBS.
William Wilson hauged himself with a silk handkerchief in the Tombs yesterday. He was arrested last Wednesday and was committed in the Yorkville Police Court to answer a charge of misdemeanor. He was arraigned in the General Sessions Court on Monday and taken to the Tombs in the afternoon. At 7 o'clock yesterday morning Keeper Clark, who had seen the prisoner several times during the night, went to Wilson's cell and found the wicket latch fastened. On opening the door the lifeless body was found, the feet resting on the floor. George Johnson, age sixteen, who occupied another cell in the Tombs, was discovered as he was making preparations to hang himself, and was removed to a padded cell, where his hands were securely fastened.

minsent, and was removed to a panded cell, where his hands were securely fastened.

Warden Finn said that Wilson was the second man who had committed suicide in the Tombs within two months, the other prisoner being the one who had shot at Mrs. Stewart's watchman. "It one who had shot at Mrs. Stewart's watchman. "It is not due to any lack of watchfulness on the part of the keepers," continued the warden, "but to this new law forbidding more than one prisoner in a cell. The prisoners become gloomy and kill themselves in spite of the keepers. Wilson's body was warm when found and for a long time afterward. It was sent to the Morgue. A woman called and said that she would bury it and I sent her to the Coroner's office with an officer."

COMPLAINT OF THE DISTRICT-ATTORNEY. COMPLAINT OF THE DISTRICT-ATTORNEY.

An excited counsellor-at-law complained bitterly to Judge Cowing in the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, of the difficulty that he found under District-Attorney Olney's administration in procuring trials for his clients. He said that he had appeared nine times before the court in the present month to defend his clients, and although the cases had been set down by the District-Attorney for trial, the assistants were always unprepared. Judge Cowing asked Assistant District-Attorney Parris if the cases which were on yesterday's calendar could be tried immediately. Mr. Parris said that on account of the absence of Mr. Vincent, who had been in charge of the cases on previous days, the trials must be postponed. Judge Cowing said that the law, perhaps unfortunately, gave the District-Attorney the soleright to move cases for trial, and the Court could not act in that matter. He appreciated, however, the position of the counsel, and if the evidence for the prosecution was not ready when the cases were next set down he would entertain a motion for their dismissal.

AN ASSIGNMENT NOT LIKELY TO BE MADE. AN ASSIGNMENT NOT LIKELY TO BE MADE.

McGinnis Brothers & Fearing, the Stock Exchange firm whose suspension was announced on Mionday, settled its account with the Oregon and Transcontinental Company yesterday, by paying it the balance due it. It is understood that some of the largest creditors of the firm, after the settlement with the Oregon and Transcontinental Company, have agreed to aid the firm. Aithough the papers have been prepared, it is said that an assign will probably be avoided, and that the firm will resume business in a short time. Consultations between the principal creditors and friends of the firm have been held since the failure was announced, and, while no plan has been adopted by them, it is stated that the creditors will assist in placing the firm again on a confirming power from the Board of Aldermen, has been confirming power from the Board of Aldermen, has been

Mr. Baker, of Chicago, Mr. Pullma and other large creditors have been discussing the affairs of the firm, and undoubtedly they will come to its relief. I am confident that an assignment will be wholly unnecessary, and that as soon as its business can be put in shape the firm will resume its former position.

THE LIBELLERS OF H. O'NEILL & CO.

A RIDICULOUS ATTEMPT AT DEFENCE. THE TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION TRYING TO SNEAK

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION TRYING TO SNEAK OUT, LEAVING THEIR TOOLS IN TROUBLE.

The examination of Romondt and Garrett, who were arrested while distributing libellous circulars with intent to migure the business of H. O'Neill & Co., was continued yesterday in the Jefferson Market Police Court. The counsel for the defence attempted to show that there was a provocation for the attering of the libellous circular in the alleged fact that an impudent circular which had been sent to O'Neill & Co. by the Cigar-makers' Union, asking the firm to "boycott" The Tribune, had been returned with a phrase added in writing the meaning of which was said to be indecent. As none of the witnesses could satisfy themselves upon the reading of the phrase throughout, as it stood, the effort to show that there was an indecent allusion contained in it somewhere fell flat. Ambrose H. Purdy, formerly Assistant United States Attorney, Theodore Bremsen, a lawyer, and two men, who said that they had been employed on The New-York Times, were shown the circular, but failed to decide as to the meaning of all the words actually written. Their testimony amounted to this—that if a long stroke of the pen which appeared as part of the writing was meant for a dash, it must veil an improper allusion. Mr. Purdy's testimony was given on the word of a gentleman. Douglas Campbell, who appeared for the prosecution, objected to this testimony throughout as totally irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial to the case of Romondt and Garrett.

Several members of the Typographical Union were called to give their opinion of the meaning of the OUT, LEAVING THEIR TOOLS IN TROUBLE.

Several members of the Typographical Union were called to give their opinion of the meaning of the words. McKay, an officer of the Union, was asked on cross-examination if he could identify a certain circular which urged business men to "boycott" The Trituine. He answered that it was sent chiefly to firms in the dry goods business.

Mr. Campbell—Was this circular sent out by the Typographical Union †
The witness—It was sent out before the Typographical Union had taken any action.

Mr. Campbell—It is stated in the circular that the Typographical Union was determined to "boycott" every firm which continued to advertise in Tue Tribune. Was that an expression of the purpose of the Union † was reason enough.

Justice White did not appear until late. When he took his seat Mr. Campbell spoke of the refusal of the witness McKay to answer a question which was necessary to show the origin of the libellous circular. "These men," said he, "having put the two prisoners, Romondt and Garrett, into a trap, are now willing that they shall bear all the responsibility of the crue."

are now willing that they shall bear all the responsibility of the crime."

The Justice decided that the officers of the Union would be responsible in a civil action.

It was expected that Lockwood, a printer, who accompanied McCabe on the visit to Mr. O'Neill to ask him to cease advertising in The Tribuxe, would be called. He was not called, however.

The examination was adjourned until Tnesday afternoon, when the briefs of counsel will be submitted.

THE SURROGATE'S OFFICE UNDER FIRE. AN INVESTIGATION ORDERED BY THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Alderman McQuade presented the following pre-amble and resolution yesterday at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen:

Whereas, It is alleged that grave irregularities exist,

the Board of Aldermen:

Wheroas, it is alleged that grave irregularities exist, and certain provisions of law are either violated or nullified by the Surrogate or permitted by him on the part of his subordinates in the transaction of the business of that offlice; be it therefore:

Resolved, That the special committee appointed by this Board on January 31, 1884, be authorized and directed to investigate such allegations and the method of transacting business in the office of the Surrogate, such investigation to be conducted as provided in Chapter 39 of the laws of 1860, and the result reported to this Board at the earliest time practicable.

Mr. O'Neil moved that it be adopted. Mr. O'Connor moved that the matter he over for one week. The committee, he said, already had one investigation under way, and could not give the one proposed the consideration it deserved. The chairman of the committee was in Europe; another member, Mr. Sheils, had declined to serve, and the remaining member, Mr. Fullgraft, had suspended operations. The Surrogate was a constitutional officer and his office was a court, not a department. The Common Council had nothing to do with him except to fix his salary. The attempt at an investigation would amount to nothing in the end. It was merely a fishing expedition for notoriety. He asked that time be given to examine the statute on the subject. Messrs, Jachne and O'Neilopposed delay. Motions by Mr. O'Connor to refer the matter to a special committee and to increase the special committee to five members were lost. The resolution was then adopted by a party vote of 14 to 7, the Tammany and the County Democracy members voting in favor and the Republicans opposing it. Mr. McQuade did not take part in the debate, and when asked after the meeting the reason for his resolution declined to state any specific irregularities.

Surrogate Rollins said to a Transun reporter:

I am willing that any person or committee chall investigates Usean Survey.

Surrogate Rollins said to a Tribuni: reporter:

I am willing that any person or committee shall investigate my court. I have never received one dollar in fees since I became Surrogate. I have never received any remineration beyond my salary many position I have held under the city. If any of my clerks have received fees illegally, I have not been cognizant of it. There has never been any complaint made to me on this subject. The cuerks in my office are allowed to receive fees by resolution of the Board of Alderman and are not required to pay them over to the city.

HOW THE GOATS HELD HARLEM BRIDGE. HOW THE GOATS HELD HARLEM BRIDGE.

Harlem Bridge was wrapped in fog and shadow.
The river was dotted with cakes of ice. The sun had stopped in its course, a short distance from the terminus of the Second Avenue Elevated Railway, and closed one eye in a doleful manner at the battle which was raging below. Policemen inspired individually by their number collectively gripped tighter their clubs and marched in phalanxes of 150 pounds each toward the Bridge. Anon there was the crash of conflict, the groaning of the injured and the plaintive bleating of goats. Then all was still and the tide of traffic flowed on.

Two goats caused the fray. "Billy" goats they were with brass tipped horns and a wicked twist in their tails. They came from the wilds of Mott Haven early in the day and, walking across the Thisd Avenue Bridge with the intention of visiting their resistives in upper Fifth-ave., they pansed in Haven early in the day and, walking across the Threal Avenue Bridge with the intention of visiting their reistives in upper Fifth-ave., they paused in the pathway to gaze into the river. A policeman, a quaint reminiscence of the "leather-heads of old New-York," came along and envying the affectionate placidity in the souls of the goats prodded one of them with his "locust." The goat is naturally a quiet animal and, instead of remarking, "Gentlemen we are about to fire," the twam "fired" their brass-tipped horns with so much emphasis upon the broadest part of the policeman's anatomy that the official fell in an unrecognizable heap. And then one goat winked and the other twitched his tail. A small boy with a tin can came whistling along and rapped the elder of the two goats with his pail. A flash of horns, a shrick, and one family was made desolate. The relic of law that had fallen in the onslaught recovered and rapped for assistance and he got it. Eleven Italians and three policemen came and in company front marched bravely up to the enemy's line. But the mischievous wrinkle in the off goat's nose had assumed the curl of ferocity, and the near goat's eyes giared like railway dancer signals. The attacking narty could wrinkle in the off goat's nose had assumed the curl of ferocity, and the near goat's eyes glared like railway danger signals. The attacking party could not take them ou the flank, for the goats demonstrated the possibility of striking seventeen points at the same time, and the Italians fled, crying: "Daspirita da Garibaldi is-a in-a dana-goata."

Police went to the mounted officers and asked them to have the reserve force of both precincts called out. A clatter of hoofs and the trainp of reinforcements were both drowned in the blood-thirsty demand of the vanquished: "Shoot the beasts." Then up strode brave Officer Mulcahy, of the Twelfth, and drew his revolver. Shot after shot shattered the air—and the animals. A bleat from the stiffening lips of the goats that would no more be the terror of the peripatetic bill-sticker, and the force of Italians and policemen marched steadily onward across the Bridge.

An examination of the old Eric Railway building in West-st, bet ween Feade and Duane sts. yester-day, showed that the losses by the fire on Monday night in the general ticket department were slight. The hall of the New-York Merchantile Exchange was completely gutted, the loss being about $5,000—on which there is an insurance of $3,000. The loss on the building which falls on the Eric Railway Company, is estimated by its real estate/bureau at $30,000. There will be no interruption to the builness of the road, although some of the office force may have to be transferred to Jersey City, while the building is undergoing repairs.

MR. THOMPSON'S REQUEST GRANTED.

A communication was received yesterday by the Board of Aldermen from Hubert O. Thompson, Commissioner of Public Works, asking for permission to have the connections made with the Croton water mains and the Forty-second-st. reservoir done by days' work instead of by contract. He has available $8,449, but the work, he says, is so complicated that it would best be done by days' work under the direction of the engineers of the department rather than by contract. The request was granted. was granted.

The sale of the Harrison Library, together with other works of art and literature, was begin at Leavitt & Co.'s Clinton Hall salesroom Monday afternoon. The collection of books comprises a unique edition of Shakespeare in thirty-six quarto volumes, illustrated by over four thousand plates. A large engraving of Albert Direr's "Temptation of St. Anthony" yesterday sold for $5.50, and Martin Kota's "Last Judgment," after Michael Angelo, for $3.50.

HOLLENDER CONVICTED.

Emil Hollender was convicted yesterday, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, of manslaughter in the first degree, with a recommendation to mercy. He shot and killed Frank Rademacher in front of No. 132 Franklin-st.. in June last. Rademacher struck Hollender in the face and the assaulted man drew his pistol and shot his assailant. This was the second trial, the former jury having disagreed.

A DANGEROUS TEST OF ADULTERATED TEAS.

A meeting of the Importers and Grocers' Exchange was held yesterday. A request from Congressman Hewitt for an opinion upon a measure now pending in Congress, proposing to amend the laws against adulterated teas by prohibiting the importation of such as contain more than eight percent of ash, was considered, and it was resolved that such an amendment would prove a dangerous test.

The Hamburg steamship Wieland, which arrived yesterday, had a stormy voyage. On February 9, in a terrific gale, some of her boats were washed away and her sails were blown in ribbons. The vessel was hove to for twenty-four hours. On February 14 she passed a large iceberg. On the day previous Margaretha Hamm fell down the hatchway and broke her skull.

RAPID TRANSIT COMMISSIONERS' DOINGS.

The Rapid Transit Commissieners yesterday examined the model of Speer's endless sidewalk and Mr. Speer asked them for permission to build a structure in accordance with his plan in Duane-st. Commissioner Stewart said that; the property-owners on that street were not willing that an elevated structure of any kind should be built there. Oliver Drake Smith, son of the president, has been appointed special counsel to the Board. President Smith opposed the appointment. Commissioner Earle went to Albany yesterday to represent the Board before the committee which is considering the Thomas bill for the extension of the time of the Commission.

DECORATIONS FOR THE ARION BALL.

The scene in Madison Square Garden is now a busy one. Artists, painters and workmen are all engaged preparing for the ball of the Arion Society to-morrow night. Every pillar in the huge building has been made to appear like a lofty tree with wide spreading branches, and between them at discusse of twenty feet are great iron vases filled wide spreading branches, and between them at distances of twenty feet are great iron vases filled with natural flowers. Inside the tiers near the roof two immense pieces of canvas have been stretched, upon which are painted figures of a humorous character, illustrating a journey to and from the ball. The big cask from which the monster procession will issue is nearly completed, and an additional balcony at the front and two extra rows of boxes on the Twenty-seventh-st. side of the building have been erected.

The small boy now divides his time between whip-ping tops and inspecting vacant lots for a suitable baseball ground.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS. WHAT MR. VANDERHOOF SAYS OF HIS CASE.

WHAT MR. VANDERHOOF SAYS OF HIS CASE. Edward A. Vanderhoof, jr., who was arrested on the train at Elizabeth on February 11 while on his way from his home in Plainfield to this city, is living at the Sheridan House in Elizabeth in charge of the Sheriff of Union County, preferring not to give bail. Last Friday his counsel procured an order from Justice Van Sycle, of the Supreme Court, to take testimony as to the truth of the affidavits upon which he was held to bail, and the matter was referred to E. S. Atwater, of Elizabeth. Some testimony was taken on Monday, and more will be taken to-day. A Tribune reporter saw Mr. Vanderhoof yesterday. He said:

I wish you would correct the misstatement which has derhoof yesterday. He said:

I wish you would correct the misstatement which has appeared in some of the papers, that this suit is brought by one of my former partners, Frank H. Morrison, for embezzlement of the firm's assets. The suit is brought by J. H. Morrison, Frank's father, and is against all the members of the firm, his son included. The amount claimed is something over $19,500 which he alleges that ne deposited with the firm. One of the chargosis that I misrepresented the value of my seat in the Stock Exchange, when I told him that it was worth $30,000. At the examination yesterday we produced witnesses who showed that the value of seats is about $30,000. The suit is a persecution; it is brought in a purely milicious spirit and has no merit in it, I know that I shall be completely vindicated.

The suit is in the New-Jersey Supreme Court and shau we completely vindicated.

The suit is in the New-Jersey Supreme Court and is for $40,000. The order to hold to bail, is for the sum of $19,502 19. Thomas N. McCarter, of Newark, is counsel for Morrison, and R. V.Leindaberry, of Elizabeth, for Vanderhoff.

SEARCHING FOR THE ESCAPED NEGRO.

The Sheriff's officers, several private detectives, and numbers of citizens of Long Island were actively engaged yesterday in the search for Charles H. Rugg, who escaped from the Queens County Jail on Sunday night. Rumors of his arrest at several places at the same time were received during the day and telegrams poured in on Sheriff Furman. The only dispatch to which the Sheriff attached any importance was one received from Dr. F. C. Hageman, of South Oyster Bay, stating that a negro answering Rugg's description had passed through the village about 6 o'clock on Monday night going in the direction of Deer Park. The Sheriff immediately sent Under Sheriff Warnock and several detectives to South Oyster Bay. A later telegram to the Sheriff, assuring him that Rugg had been seen on the road leading from Babylon to Deer Park, was confirmed by dispatches that the Sheriff had received from Jamaica, where Rugg was seen early in the morning by two men who had not heard of Rugg's escape. He had on an old slouch hat that was too large and a coat that was too small for him. He attracted the men's attention by his peculiar dress and wild appearance, and when he saw the men he entered the woods. It is supposed that he arrived at Babylon shortly after dark, and that he passed through the village unnoticed.

lon shortly after dark, and that he passed through the village unnoticed.

A friend of Sheriff Furman's brought a medium to the jail, who went into a trance and after half an hour announced, amid laughter, that Rugg was not two miles away from the jail. A thorough search of Hunter's Point, Winfield, Woodside and the oiers along the river front was made without the finding of a clew.

Great excitement prevailed in the neighborhood of Babylon, and threats were freely uttered that if Rugg were captured he would be lynched.

A man, supposed to be Rugg, went to the house of

He escaped to the woods and a large party was soon organized to look for him.

ALLEGED POISONING BY A HUSBAND. Edward D. Morgan and his wife, of River-st., aterson, charge each other with mutual attempts o poison. No formal complaints have been made, Paterson, charge each other with mutual attempts to poison. No formal complaints have been made, but it leaked out vesterday, through the gossip of neighbors, that Mrs. Morgan had told the Cuief of Police that her husband had tried to poison her and their seven children by giving them beer in which opium had been put. The police kept the matter quiet, but Mrs. Morgan acknowledged to a reporter that she had formed this suspicion regarding her husband. She and all the children except one, who did not drink the beer, she said, had been taken ill with symptoms of opium poisoning. Morgan, who is a cooper in Hinchliffe's brewery, denied the imputations of his wife, and asserted that she was a confirmed opium-cater. He suspected, he said, that his wife had tried to poison him by breathing into his face as he lay in bed; whereupon he would lose consciousness. He often used to feel dizziness and heaviness, with pain at the heart, until he left his home to sleep elsewhere, since which time he has not had these symptoms.

JERSEY CITY.

JERSEY CITY.

An application was made in the Orphan's Court yes erday, by William D. Daly, for the removal of Anne C. Kuhlman, administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband, Charles Kuhlman, of Hoboken, on the ground that she was squandering the estate. He stated that Mrs. Kuhlman had a husband living at the time that she married Mr. Kuhlman. Mrs. Kuhlman admitted that in 1841 she was married to John Holtic, in New-York. In 1857 he was sent to the Albany Penituntiary, and she was informed that he died there. In 1867 she married Kuhlman, who died on January 1, 1883. Shortly before his death she heard that her first husband was living and married to another woman, but afterward she was informed that he died a short time before Kuhlman's death. Judge McGill said that if Mrs. Kuhlman had not heard from her first husband in seven years he was dead in the eye of the law, but Mr. Daly declared that it could be proved that she heard from him in that time, and the case was laid over for the purpose of taking testimony.

Michael Desmond, a driller in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, was caught between two cars near Green-st, yesterday morning and crushed to death. The body was removed to Speer's Morgue. Desmond lived in Elizabeth, and he leaves a wife and family.

An Important Feature.

We do not assert what Hood's Sarsaparilla will do, but point on to what it has done, leaving you to accept the conclusion "that what it has done it is fair to believe it will do again." We will tell you the truth in regard to this remarkable medicine. We believe Hood's Sarsapartila the best combination possible to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood, and to eradicate all obnoxious humors. A peculiar and important feature of Hood's Sarssparida is that it strengthens and builds up the system, while it eradicates disease and all im-parities of the blood.

Typhold Pneumonia and Scintics.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Gentlemen: One year ago this last fall I was taken sick with typhold pneumonia, which left me very weak, without any ap-petite, and my blood in a fearfully low condition. I also had petite, and my blood in a rearraily low condition. I also had sciatica rheumatism. I have tried all the kinds of medicines I could think of, and none of them did me a particle of good. One afyour agents gave me a set of your heautiful plaques, and read-ing what there was on the back, I was induced to purchase a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result was most remarkable. I commenced to improve at once, and my appetite was much better. I gained strength and my rheumatism left me entirely. With everything that I have tried, I have never taken anything that gave me the relief that your Sarsaparilla has, and I would not be without it. I have taken four buttles. T. E.
